C. A. Purver, Pioneer of Clayburn District, Passes

The district mourns the loss of one of its pioneer citizens, C. A. Purver, who died at the family residence, Clayburn, on December 11, in his eighty-third year.

The funeral was held on Monday to the family plot in the Musselwhite cemetery, and was attended by a large number of friends and neighbors. The Rev. Mr. Scudamore officiated, and pall-bearers were R. A. Cooper, R. Bullock, J. S. Benson, A. Purver, G. Purver and S. Foster. The Henderson Funeral Home had charge of arrangements.

Surviving are his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Foster, Vancouver, and Mrs. Cox of Kansas, and two sons, Glen and Alexander of Clayburn.

The late Mr. Purver was born in Hampshire, England, coming to the United States in 1873, and was married to Nellie G. Glenn. In 1882 they moved to Saanich, V. I.

In the early days Mr. Purver was recognized as one of the best horse breeders in that district, and was the owner of several fancy trotters. He was well known on Pacific Coast circuits, and many valuable trophies, treasured by his family, are testimony to his success.

During a hunting expedition he was so impressed by the beauty of this district that he returned and homesteaded in 1885, the site of his present home. Some years later he sold a number of acres to the Clayburn Brick Company when it was established.

He was an ardent worker for the community, and whenever possible lent a helping hand to his neighbors. The late Mr. Purver was one of the first councillors of the Matsqui Municipality, and served for nine years in that capacity. He also served for six years on the Matsqui School Board.

Stores Open Late Next Week

To give Christmas shoppers in this district every opportunity to do their gift purchasing, Abbotsford stores will remain open, in addition to the usual business hours, Tuesday evening, Wednesday afternoon and evening, and Thursday evening.

British Columbia will have a three-day lay-off from work at Christmas this year, December 25 comes on a Friday. The following day, Saturday, is Boxing Day, also a legal holiday now, and stores and offices must close, according to the ruling of Attorney General Sloan. Sunday will complete the three-day rest.

Heavy Japanese Shipments Enter U.S. At Huntingdon

Unprecedented volumes of freight continue to pass through the Huntingdon outport, destined for United States points as a result of the marine workers strike. Since early November the carlot exports alone have approximated 50 to 60 cars daily, and for the past few days Japanese oranges, toys and other Oriental goods for the Christmas trade have largely bulked the shipments. Both the Canadian Pacific Railway and the B. C. E. Railway have shared the freight traffic.

The condition of J. T. Mawson who has been confined to the M.S.-A. hospital is not improving as well as was expected and he has been removed to Shaughnessy Military hospital, Vancouver.

Customs officers in the territory from Huntingdon to Boundary Bay have formed a branch of the Customs and Excise Officers' Association. There are about 50 officers in the area covered.

Happenings in the Matsqui District

The annual Xmas concert and Santa Claus will be held in the Matsqui Community hall on Friday evening. This will be the first time for several years that the benevolent Santa Claus has made a public appearance to the Matsqui children.

Miss E. Lehman spent the weekend in Vancouver.

The Lutheran Sunday School will hold its Annual Christmas Tree on Tuesday, Dec. 29 at 8 p.m.

The delegation sent to Victoria by the Matsqui dyking area was cordially received by Mr. Wells Grey. The minister was sympathetic concerning the tax burden. The only statement he would make regarding the reduction of taxation of the area, was that he would take the matter up with the executive.

Other members of the house advised the committee that if it wished any action it would have to be persistent and visit the capital repeatedly.

Mr. O. T. Jacobson, was elected as president of the local C.C.F. Club at the annual meeting and election of officers held in the Bible Students' hall on Thursday evening. Mr. S. Young was elected vice president and Kenneth Thompson was re-elected as secretary-treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Bates had as their guest last week-end Mr. P. Frederickson of Vancouver.

The C.C.F. study group met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Igeland have had as their guest, the former's nephew, Mr. Kristian Saether of the S.S. Giddington Court, which called at New Westminster. Mr. Saether has his home in Swansea, Wales.

Mrs. Michael Sargett (the former Alice Nelson, of Matsqui) is bereaved by the death of her husband, who passed away suddenly in Seattle last week.

A memorial service for Mr. Loth Sward and Mr. P. Peterson was held in the Matsqui hall on Tuesday afternoon. Rev. Asplund of Ferndale, officiated.

Under the auspices of the Matsqui Hospital Auxiliary a whist drive was held in the Ridgedale hall last Tuesday evening. Nineteen tables of whist were played. Master of ceremonies was Mr. Bert Farr. Winners of the ladies' and men's first prizes were Miss Aikins of Gifford and Mr. R. A. Cooper of Clayburn, while consolation prizes went to Mrs. McDougall and Mr. T. Lancaster.

The Matsqui Hospital Auxiliary which has conducted several raffles, held its drawings upon this occasion. Winners were as follows: cedar chest, Mr. R. Bullock, Clayburn; Christmas cake, Audrey Kerr, Matsqui; Woodward's donation, John Westlin, Gifford; Birks' donation, Elmer Swanson, Matsqui; Hudson Bay Donation, Mission Sandwich Shop; Dollar, Mr. Kennedy, Aldergrove.

Mrs. R. Johnston has been ill with chickenpox.

Norwegian service will be conducted by Rev. E. Torgerson in the Lutheran church on Christmas Day at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. J. Igeland is visiting with her daughter Miss Frieda Igeland of Vancouver for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Mynors of Clayburn entertained a number of friends on Monday evening.

Further investigations into the cause of the fire at Huntingdon school last week, conducted by police and Fire Marshal Walker of Vancouver tend to disprove the theory that defective wiring was the cause of the blaze, as stated in the report of the fire on another page. It is believed that if the outbreak was not of an incendiary origin, it was caused by a smouldering cigarette stub, or some other similar cause.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Edwards celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at the home of their daughter Mrs. A. W. Webb last week. Covers were laid for twelve, and a three-tier wedding cake centred the table, flanked by yellow chrysanthemums. Mr. and Mrs. Edwards have two daughters, Mrs. C. V. Morrison of New York City and Mrs. A. W. Webb of Abbotsford, and two grand-children, Mary Webb and Dorothy Morrison.

Miss Dorothy Morrison has returned to Vancouver, after visiting with her aunt, Mrs. Webb for a few days.

W. Beeston underwent a tonsil operation in the M.S.-A. hospital last week.

Abbotsford soccer team journeyed to Willingdon Park, Vancouver last Saturday, when they were scheduled to meet Vancouver Heights merchants in a postponed game. Owing to the teaming downpour of rain, however, play was impossible, and after discussion between the two teams and the referee, it was decided that each team take a point, and regard the game as played, rather than have the Abbotsford team make any more fruitless journeys in order to play the game.

A car driven by a Matsqui man overturned near the junction of the Gladwin and Yale roads, and toppled into the ditch. None of the three occupants, all local men, were injured, and the car was not badly damaged. Mr. Gerald Heller returned from the East this week.

Miss V. Jermyn, R.N. has resumed her duties at the hospital, having recovered from a fractured ankle.

C. Nelson, local electrician, is busy wiring several houses in the district. He is also wiring the Whatcom road school buildings and repairing the wiring at Huntingdon school, damaged by fire last week.

D. McDonald, Sr. was down from Greenwood, B.C. this week to visit his son Duncan who is a patient in St. Paul's hospital. Duncan received severe head and spinal injuries seven weeks ago when he fell down a mine shaft, and it is not yet known if his disability is likely to be permanent.

LIBRARY CORNER

A reading of Race Differences, by Otto Klineberg, should be required of all people who believe in Nordic superiority. The author applies to his subject the findings of the natural and social scientists, and concludes that in the light of our present knowledge there is no scientific proof of racial differences in mentality; and convincingly shows that behaviour differences in racial groups are to be explained on cultural grounds rather than racial. The book is well written; and no special background or training is needed to follow the argument.

Another excellent popular work on ethnology is We Europeans, by Julian Huxley and Alfred Haddon, which discusses race questions as applied to present day Europe; and has a good deal to say about the false racial doctrine preached by the Nazi state.

Physician, priest, novelist, scholar, and well-known psychiatrist, Dr. J. Rathbone Oliver writes conversationally and with a voice of experience of the problems of adjustment, sex, and social behaviour that confront mankind through life. Ordinary Difficulties of Everyday People he calls his book. It is hard to imagine anyone who would not find some of the counsel given applicable to him.

Other instructive books on applied psychology are: Increasing personal efficiency, by Donald A. Laird; About Ourselves, by Harry A. Overstreet; and Exploring Your Mind With the Psychologists, by Albert E. Wiggam.

Dr. Walter Bowle, rector of Grace Church in the city of New York, was asked by a publisher to undertake the work of retelling the story of the Bible as "a story of the Bible written from the perspective of the best we know today about its various books and their relationships, and yet a story which will keep the religious reverence which the Bible has always inspired." This he has done with great literary skill; and his Story of the Bible will appeal to young as well as mature readers as a delightful rewriting of the ancient story. The book is handsomely made, well illustrated, and has an excellent index.

Thou Shalt Not Love

— A NOVEL BY —
GEORGIA GRAIG

Her lips mocked: "You don't mean a home and babies?"
Michael said grimly: "That's exactly what I do mean! It should be the ideal of every man and woman. I know that it is mine! Fine sons—beautiful daughters—"

Michael, caught in a tide of emotion which he hardly understood himself, did not notice that Starr was shivering.

In imagination a parade passed before her eyes. Sturdy little men with clear gray eyes like Michael's; little girls with yellow hair like Stephanie's. A terrible pain twisted her heart. For a second she lost all consciousness of the daring role she had elected to play. The doomed Starr Ellison saw the ghost of her forbidden happiness.

In imagination, too, she was transported back to that musty, three-thousand-year-old tomb with its damp, bright-painted walls, and the voice of John Lessing was droning the curse of Tut-Amen-Ra.

"Thou—and thy children—and thy children's children—"

With a tremendous effort of will she shook herself free of her morbid memories. She could not afford to remember. There was no Starr Ellison who was cursed—doomed. It was the soulless "Play-Girl" who laughed into Michael's face.

"Hassan—how quaint! You do belong in an Arabian Night's tale, don't you! Girls don't have babies these days, do they?"

"I guess your kind don't!"

A spell was snapped. The battle was on again. Drawn daggers flashed. Michael said scathingly:

"I'm a fool—a double-dyed fool! I was trying to talk to you in a language you don't understand! I should take you for what you are, just like every other man who accepts your careless favors! Perhaps, after all, I was right in the first place, and that is the language you understand better—it certainly must be more familiar to you!"

He pulled his car up to the curb before her apartment house so suddenly that Starr was almost jolted out of her seat. Insensibly she swayed a little toward him. His hand went out to aid her—and instead he caught her into an embrace so savage that it hurt her. His arms held her crushingly while his kisses rained on her ice-cold face, wiped the mockery from her scarlet mouth. They were the rough, hard, ruthless kisses of a man who wanted to hurt the one he holds in his arms, but even so, in the depths of her subconsciousness Starr was afloat in a warm sea of unknown, strange delight. Kisses—Michael's kisses—which bruised heart as well as lips.

Breathless, she pulled away, staring at him in fright from the deep pools of her dark eyes. She did not speak. Nor did Michael.

With a swift gesture Starr opened the door and slipped from the car. Instantly Michael's foot was on the starter, the car roared at his touch on the accelerator, and he rounded the corner and was out of sight before Starr could catch her breath. As she stepped into the elevator and felt it shoot skyward, she felt that all her courage, too, was synthetic as herself. It was oozing away in an ebb of terror. How was she ever going to stand the bitterness of it? Six months now seemed an eternity.

CHAPTER IX.

Starr came from her rose-hued, lotus-scented bath. Her skin was flushed from her brisk towelings, but she felt cold inside. Cold with the remembrance of Michael's kisses.

Other men had kissed "Play-Girl." That was to be expected. How could she help it, with her reputation? That was all part of the stage props. Lance had kissed her, Tod Ranger—others. But none of them had ever inspired her with the intense feeling that Michael's kisses did. The deep thrill that had shaken her body, making her blood race along like fire, was something she had never imagined.

She sat down before her triple mirrors over her lace-draped dressing table, drawing a filmy negligee about herself. She had allowed herself barely enough time to dress for Tod's party. She always did that. The only life possible for her was continual rushing from one party to another, from one thrill to another, from one man to another! Michael had made that possible in making her "Play-Girl" and ever since her first appearance as the author of the notorious book there had been no lack of invitations. Society, the madly-rushing, heedless, decadent younger set, had opened arms to her. She went everywhere; life was a whirl. Which was what she wanted it to be.

She was afraid to be alone, afraid of the solitude of her own thoughts.

So she sought forgetfulness, crowding into her days and nights a world of synthetic emotions, in a feverish attempt to recompense her real self, not the synthetic one she had become, for the one genuine emotion which must be denied. Love!

In the set to which Michael, and the Tarrance Publishing Company had introduced her they played; they danced; they kissed; they made violent love which was not love at all. They did not truly love—any of them. And though she was capable of it, she must not.

She pressed her fingers against her throbbing temples, the deadly weariness that she always felt in these quiet, frightening moments dragging at her limbs again. How long could she keep it up? Michael had sensed and spoken more truly than he knew. Lance was becoming more and more difficult to handle. He wanted more than kisses. And now there was Michael. . . . Michael? She dared not think of Michael.

"Thou Shalt Not Love," was to Starr as real a command as though it blazed before her eyes in words of fire.

Her comfortably proportioned colored serving woman's voice disturbed her thoughts.

"What-all's the matter, Miss Starr?" the woman wanted to know. "Is somebody done hurt your feelin's? You look so all kind o' tuckered out and like you didn't care for nothin'?"

Starr lifted her head to smile at the woman. She was grateful for her companionship, certain here of a loyalty she found nowhere else. Her maid's concern was real. Michael, of course, had thought Starr should have an Arab woman, to be in keeping with the rest of her lay-out, but they had compromised on a negress who looked like a blackamoor. She was from North Carolina and her name was Sapphira, enough like the Arabic Safiyeh, if it came to that, to suit anybody. She cared not at all about being a synthetic Arab, but she did care—and boasted of it continuously in Harlem—about the collection of silver bangles and bright-hued headdress she was allowed to wear, instead of the usual uniform other colored maids had to assume. She did not care so much for the mushrabiyyeh windows. They made it a bit hard to see what was going on in the world, and Miss Starr was always gadding off some place.

Starr told Sapphira: "No, nobody's hurt my feelings. I've just got a good case of the heebie-jeebies, I guess, Sapphira. Life seems to be a useless sort of thing."

The colored woman shook her head. "What I 'specs, Miss Starr, is that you-all are burnin' your candle both ends too much. What you need is to fall plumb in love with jes' one o' these men that's runnin' after you so much, an' git married. . . . That's what. . . ."

Bread From Southern Rhodesia

Sent To London And Arrived In Good Condition

J. C. Kirkwood, in Marketing, says if Southern Rhodesia can do it Canada can do it better—fly bread to Great Britain. Adam Adams—a good name for any man—sent loaves of bread from Bulawayo by aeroplane—5,000 miles—to have it put into competition with the bread of British bakers at the annual Bakers' and Confectioners' Exhibition in London. This Rhodesian bread arrived in such fine condition that it was given honorable mention by the judges—with 10,000 competitors, and with only three British bakers ahead of him. Some day we may have pneumatic tubes to Britain—and pipe lines for milk.

Racket Of Smuggling Aliens

Purchase of a small fleet of speedy pursuit planes to break up the fast-growing racket of smuggling aliens into the United States by plane is being considered by the labor department's immigration service.

A golf ball killed 74,000 fish when a player sliced his ball into the fish hatchery of Glacier National Park. The ball clogged the intake line and shut off the water.

Little Helps For This Week

Thou shalt guide me with Thy counsel, and afterwards receive me to glory. Psalm 73:24.

Guide us through life, and when at last We enter into rest, Thy tender arms around us cast, And fold us to Thy breast.

Go forth to conquer the trials of existence believing in a Shepherd of your souls. Then faith in Him will support you in duty, and duty firmly done will strengthen faith. Then when the strife of the earthly battle fades and you hear instead the musical sound of the ocean of eternity, your faith will raise the song of conquest, and its forward glance upon the life to come will take up the inspiration of the Hebrew king, "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life, and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever."

British Emergency Forces In Palestine Housed In Hotel

One half of the King David Hotel, Jerusalem, has been chosen as headquarters for the British emergency force in Palestine.

General John Dill, who has a £500 ransom on his head, occupies the second floor, which is shared by his officers. The third floor is taken up by the R.A.F. headquarters, while the Army headquarters is on the fourth floor.

The winter garden is now the officers' mess, and the canteen for the men is on the mezzanine.

The rest of the hotel is still open to visitors, who notice nothing unusual, because the authorities use a private entrance, and the orchestra and dance band still play daily as usual.—London Daily Sketch.

Salvaging The Junk

Thousands of pushcarts will soon start combing every city and village of the Reich in a nation-wide collection of junk. Realizing tons of usable raw materials are thrown away each day in waste, the government has ordered the carts to collect practically every kind of cast off object.

Here's that Fast "Phillips" Way

To Alkalize Stomach Quickly

On all sides, people are learning that the way to gain almost incredibly quick relief, from stomach condition arising from overacidity, is to alkalinize the stomach quickly with Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

You take either two teaspoons of the liquid Phillips' after meals; or two Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Almost instantly "acid indigestion" goes, gas from hyperacidity, "acid - headaches" — from over-indulgence in food or smoking — and nausea are relieved.

Try this Phillips' way if you have any acid stomach upsets. You will be surprised at results. Get either the liquid "Phillips" or the remarkable, new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Only 25¢ for a big box of tablets at drug stores.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM:
Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Takes Many Off Relief

SUMAS LAND-OWNERS MEET

Mass meeting of Sumas land-owners is being held in the municipal hall this afternoon to discuss the provincial government's new plans for collecting the full maintenance costs of Sumas lake area drainage. Although the capital cost has been recently reduced, the farmers are apprehensive of the government's determination to enforce collection of the full maintenance cost. Settlers of the lake area are at present assessed a flat rate of $2 an acre covering both capital and maintenance cost.

IT'S AN ILL WIND...

"Of a surety it's an ill wind that blows nobody any good, and Vancouver and particularly the waterfront, has learned the truth of this assertion most completely during the past few weeks. The maritime strike in the United States has sent an enormous amount of cargo to this port for transshipment by rail or otherwise to its destination. This in itself has been a real boon to the longshoremen and others who make their living along the waterfront, for it has brought steady employment, and therefore steady wages, to a class of men who had been without both for so long that they were almost beginning to despair of ever getting out of the wood.

But altogether aside from the amount of work which this strike has provided, it is also bringing an enormous amount of revenue to Vancouver in other ways also. Last week, for the first time in very many years, every single one of the nine C.P.R. shipping berths was occupied by an ocean going vessel. This of course means a vast increase in port revenues.

Then too the storage capacity of our wharves and warehouses is beginning to be crowded to capacity. There is literally a mountain of cases of liquor from overseas, piled up at Ballantyne Pier. There are thousands of tons of rubber, bales upon bales of cotton, of capoc and similar material, hundreds of tons of wax from the Dutch East Indies, and a huge miscellaneous assortment of other freight which has been discharged here for storage though originally destined for some American port. All of this is being stored here for the time being, and since on an average it pays storage dues of some fifty cents per week per ton, it can readily be seen that this in itself is proving a real asset to the harbour.

So that as far as Vancouver is concerned, the longer the maritime strike in the U.S. continues, the better it will be for us."

ATTORNEY-GENERAL TO READ EVIDENCE IN HEIMSTRA DEATH

The preliminary hearing of the charge of manslaughter against F. G. Dawson, contractor, Vancouver, for the death of Doris Heimstra, was heard at Whatcom Road on Saturday by Magistrate J. W. Winslow. Nineteen witnesses were called to give evidence.

It was shown that the 9-year-old girl on November 27 alighted from the school bus on the trans-provincial highway one mile east of Kilgild and opposite the Boley road. Two Hindu children left at the same time. The car driven by F. G. Dawson came in the opposite direction at this time. The Hindu children stopped for the car to pass, but the other child ran across the road and was caught by the car four feet from the edge of the road. Marks show that the car skidded before and after the impact, indicating speed, though the horn had been blown twice. Mr. McGugan of New Westminster rushed the child to the Abbotsford hospital, but she was dead when examined there by Dr. Macdonald.

The case was remanded for the evidence to be submitted to the attorney-general, who may order the accused for trial as he decides. Gordon Wismer of Vancouver was counsel for the defendant.

B. C. HEALTH SCHEME TO START IN SPRING

Actual operation of the British Columbia health insurance scheme will wait until next spring, Dr. Allen Peebles, chairman of the provincial commission in charge of the plan, said recently. At present the board is studying replies to 17,000 employers and 100,000 employees' registration forms, which have to be indexed and analyzed before the full extent of the scheme can be determined.

Negotiations with the medical profession were proceeding satisfactorily, Dr. Peebles said. Seasonal workers may be excluded at first, it was intimated.

"PEACE ON EARTH"...

A LA NEW YORK GANGSTER

Way back last March police found the murdered body of Sam Druckman in a Brooklyn garage. Druckman was a bookie who had gone to the loan sharks for $10,000 when he lost bets on the horses. When he was unable to pay his obligation, the loan sharks said, "Get it—or else."

Druckman was able to beg, borrow or steal only $3000. So the "or else" was accomplished, but not with the customary neatness and dispatch, for some passer-by heard his screams when he was being given the works—including burning the soles of his feet with lighted candles—and the police cars came screeching. The boys who had just tortured him to death were caught red-handed. Whereupon the loan-shark big shots went into action in a hurry. One of them phoned their financial backer.

"We got to have one hundred grand right away to square a 'burning rap,'" he whispered to the backer, a supposedly reputable Brooklyn business man. This business man, with about a million dollars in cash, had decided that the loan-shark business would double his money in a short time. He was right, for he received regular weekly payments with high interest rates on all loans. When he was asked to cough up $100,000 to square the murder rap, he grudgingly paid it, but it gave him food for thought.

The case was hushed neatly with the $100,000—a detective confessed later to his superiors that $100,000 was offered for a ten-way split. But in the Druckman murder lies the answer to the question, "Why did they drill Dutch Schultz?"

After the backer of the loan sharks was forced to part with $100,000 hush money he tried to free himself from the clutches of the murdering racketeers. Chief among his clients were the Amberg brothers—Oscar, Joe and Louis. Louis controlled the newly founded big-scale money-lending racket. He was doing nicely, thank you by lending at rates of interest ranging from 160 to 1040 percent. Joe Amberg controlled the white-apron and white-coat laundry racket, exacting his tithe from dentists, bartenders, butchers, cafeteria workers, and so on.

When you use a blackjack to impress on the debtor the urgency of paying up, it is easy to collect. This principle impressed Schultz. It looked like even easier money than the policy-game racket and it sounded almost respectable—like being a banker. Schultz talked the thing over with "Bo" Weinberg, his right-hand helper. "Bo" thought it sounded good, too, and started a few inquiries which led to the big business man in Brooklyn, who was looking for an out in entanglement with the Amberg racketeers.

"Look here," "Bo" told the gentleman, "Schultz can make you a much better proposition than the Ambergs and you won't have any more headaches. We'll give you a more generous cut-in for the use of your money. We're going to operate big in New York and Brooklyn so that Louis Amberg will look like a punk." "O.K.," the business man said, and handed Weinberg $10,000 to seal the bargain. "I'll tell Louis I'm pulling out from his mob." Then Schultz sent Frank Dolak and Benjamin Holinsky into Brooklyn to start a rival "Shylock" office.

When Louis learned that his money man was being stolen from him, he told Dolak and Holinsky: "You better tell Schultz to keep his nose out of here." The Schultz henchmen reported the conversation. Schultz felt just a slight tremor, for Weinberg had been mysteriously missing for several days. Could it be possible the Ambergs had done away with him—maybe sealed him up in a barrel of wet cement, waited for it to dry, and dumped him in the river? Well, he wouldn't back down for a bunch of punks. He'd muscle in and stick.

"You go back with music and flags," Schultz ordered. A few days later the bodies of Dolak and Holinsky were found riddled with bullets, and the Ambergs were thereby credited with two notches in the gun. They had trained on Schultz. Schultz immediately had a heart-to-heart talk with several members of the former Coll and Rao gangs; 13 days later hired killers got to Amberg.

Joe and his chauffeur were having a bite to eat before driving to the golf links, when Joe received a phone call to come over to Manhattan and pick up a couple of thousand which had just been paid off by a man who had been suspected of holding out on the moneylenders. That pleased Joe. He'd run over to New York for a few minutes and then go to the links. His big La Salle with the bullet-proof body was in a nearby garage. When Joe and his chauffeur entered the garage, three men stood them against the wall and let them have it.

Schultz gave his short, snorting laugh when he heard the job had been done. When Frankie Teitelbaum, bosom pal of the dead Joe, heard the tidings he vowed revenge and made no secret of his intentions. He gave his watch, set with 79 diamonds, to Louis Amberg to keep for him. "I may not come back alive," he said, although he was pretty sure that his automatic would bark first. But eleven days later they got Frankie and didn't treat him very nicely. A girl friend suggested a drink in a nearby hotel. There an "entertain-

SCHOOL CHILDREN'S CONCERT POSTPONED UNTIL SATURDAY

Owing to the fact that the Minister of Education considered that it might not be in order to have any public functions in the new Philip Sheffield Memorial Auditorium before it had been officially opened and dedicated the children's concert, with a chorus of 300 voices, which was fixed for December 15, has been postponed until the night following the official opening, Saturday, December 19.

The concert will commence sharply at 8 o'clock, and those conducting the concert hope that all seats possible will be occupied by that time, so as to avoid disturbance during the performance.

Fifty new names were added to the Matsqui voters list at the court of revision held last Thursday.

FIRE CAUSED $300 DAMAGE AT HUNTINGDON SCHOOL

The school house at Huntingdon was saved from complete destruction on Sunday last by the prompt attention of the Sumas (Wash.) fire brigade. The school, which is a two-roomed frame building was damaged to the extent of about $300 according to the local police, who investigated. The fire was caused, apparently, by faulty wiring in the floor, starting the fire and dropping below into some wood, which got away to a good start before the firemen arrived. The doors and windows of the building had not been tampered with and the police believe that only faulty wiring could have started the blaze. Immediate repairs will be made to the building, mostly in the interior.

ment" committee met Frankie. The boys hacked away at him with a small sharp ax while telling him funny stories and then stuffed his body into a trunk which went down the freight elevator of the hotel. The trunk was loaded on a small truck and near the Brooklyn Bridge the driver pushed the trunk off into the street and sped away. When the trunk was opened, Frankie's body was still warm. Schultz chuckled. He'd show these punks what made him overlord of Manhattan and the Bronx.

Louis, when he heard of the deed, didn't like it. So Schultz was really going to get tough! All right he'd show him how tough an Amberg could be. He made a proposition to a Paterson, N. J., mob of machine-gun artists, backing it with a thickish packet of $100 bills.

"I want Schultz rubbed out and as many of his mob as you can get," Louis said.

"O.K., pal, we'll do it with pleasure," he was assured. "We'd even do it for nuttin'. We don't like him anyway. But who'll put the finger on Schultz? He ain't showing himself these days where we can get at him and make an easy getaway."

"I'll attend to the details," said Louis.

He went to work right away, too, and soon had the date and place of Schultz's execution in the bag. Meanwhile Schultz wasn't asleep. He had already arranged with his boys to put Louis out of the way. Louis went to keep a tryst with a friendly moll who had been compelled to make a telephone call with an automatic pressed to her side. Two well-dressed young men picked him up for a little talk and he knew he was through. They took him to the same hotel used for the other "conference" with Frankie Teitelbaum. They went about their work in cold blood. With a small Boy Scout axe they beat a tattoo on his head, inflicting over a dozen deep cuts; they hacked at his body and watched Louie die a death of torture. Then they bound blankets around the nude body dripping blood, and took it down the freight elevator. They placed him in a car and near the Brooklyn Navy Yard poured gasoline over the blanketed body and set fire to it. The charred body was found after residents called the firemen. The fingerprints identified it.

In the meantime the Paterson mob felt it a solemn duty to get Schultz, even if Louis was dead. Louis had paid them their $50,000 fee; besides, Schultz was making his headquarters in their territory and giving the place a bad name. New York punks, they opined, ought to stay in their own back yards.

So two men with hats pulled down over their eyes entered the chophouse where Schultz and some of his men were conferring. They drilled Schultz' three henchmen with 17 shots and then shot Schultz through the abdomen. They didn't kill him or his pals instantly, but left them mortally wounded to suffer a while and ponder over their pasts. In Times Square during the theatre rush several Harlem boys shot Marty Krompfer, who was on Schultz's books as a lieutenant at $1500 a week, as he emerged from a barbershop. His pal, Sam Gold, a cheap bookie who loved to associate with big shots, was also riddled. They both recovered.

The boys in the know insist that "Bo" Weinberg, last of the Schultz hierarchy, also went out of a hotel room. They say he was carried out in an undertaker's casket and taken to a garage where there is a big shallow tank. There "Bo's" body lies in a lye solution. In a couple of months not even his teeth will be recognizable. At least that's what the boys are saying. But that's only hearsay.

Homework --- How Much?

The present trend towards the reduction and perhaps ultimately the elimination of departmental, or external examinations for students in public and high schools is a step in the right direction, if for no other reason than that it should result as its corollary, in the reduction in the amount of homework demanded of pupils and especially those in their early teens.

Reports on the subject presented at the recent annual convention of the Canadian Education Association in Regina by a committee set up to study the subject of examinations in schools showed that the three prairie provinces, in confining departmental examinations to grade 11 and 12 students, that is, in the last two years of high school, are in the van of the movement to curtail the evils resulting from the rigidity which such a system necessarily entails.

It is not difficult to divine that the curtailment of the external examination system will result in more moderate assignment of homework in the public schools and at least in the first two grades in high school. It has already done so to some extent, but even yet there is good reason to believe that in very many classrooms, both rural and urban, too much is expected from children after school hours.

And this is particularly the case where children in the last two grades of public school and the first two grades of high school are involved. Children of these ages have reached a critical, physical formative period and during these years are laying a health foundation which will serve them good or ill in adult years. During this adolescent period, while mental development must not, of course, be neglected, physical development should not be cramped by eliminating much needed opportunities for recreation and health-giving physical activity.

With the incentive of the teacher to pile up homework for the students removed by the abolition of departmental examinations in the particular grades referred to, there is no longer any reason why children should be over-burdened, to the possible detriment of health.

This was recognized by the school medical officer of the London (England) County Council in 1929 when he wrote in his report:

"It is clear that school authorities who take it upon themselves to set work which is not done under their immediate supervision take upon themselves a very heavy responsibility. It is their duty to consider the result not merely upon scholastic advancement but upon health and physique in every individual case, and in every individual case it is their duty to ensure that in every 24 hours, there is not only time for work, for meals, for physical exercise and for sufficient sleep, but also healthful relaxation and recreation."

In a handbook for one-teacher elementary schools the State Department of Public Instruction of Pennsylvania decrees:

"In primary grades home study should not be necessary. After the child has acquired the art of reading he should be permitted his own choice to take books home and return them as he chooses to do. If any home study is assigned in the intermediate grades it ought to be very limited. It should deal with such informational subjects as history and geography, and the pupil should not be held responsible the next day for having done a definite amount of work. He should be urged to read in these branches."

Discussing the same subject in a recent issue of Hygeia, under the caption, "Homework—The Big, Bad Wolf Of Education", J. F. Rogers made the following suggestions:

"Only work that can be done without help of parents should be assigned; home study should be made a privilege; it should not be too difficult; assignments should be made according to capacity and individual needs and for variety in subsequent class work; . . . home reading should be encouraged; homework should never be assigned as a punishment."

"In brief one may expect and must expect either injury to health or the exhibition of self-protective traits if the homework is either excessive or unsuitable, and there goes along with these results a waste of time which might be spent more educationally."

Railways Aid Development

The greatest single factor in the development, not only of Vancouver but of the whole of Canada, had been the Canadian railway system, N. B. Large Sum Placed On The Queen Mary's Sister Ship

The Cunard-White Star Line announced that Benjamin Wistar Morris, New York architect of the firm of Morris & O'Connor, had been retained as a consultant on the decorations of the projected new sister ship to the Queen Mary.

Grey Wornum, a Londoner, who designed the prize-winning building of the Royal Institute of British Architects, on Portland Place, has been appointed decoration architect of the new vessel. Mr. Wornum is one of a committee of three recently appointed to plan London's coronation decorations.

Insurance of more than £3,250,000 has already been placed by British underwriters on the Queen Mary's sister ship, whose keel will soon be laid at the John Brown shipyard, Clydebank.

This is easily the largest amount ever placed on a single merchant ship in the course of its construction. Brokers in London are confident that the total amount to be accepted in the market will exceed £3,500,000, thus leaving less than £1,000,000 to be made up by the government.

Important London companies that declined to participate in the Queen Mary's insurance have taken large amounts on the new ship. A number of large firms in Liverpool, however, have thus far refused to accept their share, although it is hoped that they will come in before the books are closed.

The coverage will take effect at the beginning of next year and run for not more than 36 months. Building risks are distinct from service risks and apply only while ships are under construction.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning

The liver should pour out two pounds of fluid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sick and the world looks pink. A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse any other else. 25c.

The foregoing rations are per day. They are just announced by the Canada Gazette in a list of revised Mounted Police regulations.

The Sunflower

Was Used As Food By North American Indians In Early Days

The sunflower, which is cultivated in Canada mainly for feed for birds and poultry, for ensilage as cattle feed, and as an ornamental plant, is generally recognized as indigenous to North America. It was used as food by the North American Indians, the seeds being eaten raw, or pounded and mixed with other seeds into flat cakes which were dried in the sun. In 1615 Champlain found the Indians in the vicinity of Georgian Bay cultivating the sunflower. The oil which they obtained from the seeds was used for their hair.

A Cheerful Note

The Lethbridge Herald says the spectre of southern prairie cattle dying by thousands this winter is vanishing. A lot of our cattle have gone to markets east, west and south, some for immediate slaughter and the rest for feeding. The open fall has served to allow those still on hand to find their own living. It would appear that we are going to come out of the livestock situation better than we thought.

New Helicopter 'Plane

B.C. Man Claims Test Of Latest Model Is Success

A new type of helicopter flying machine is undergoing final tests by its inventor, John Hess, at New Westminster, B.C. The inventor claims it is the first successful helicopter for all practical purposes; that it can be lifted and lowered vertically in the air.

During the past 15 years Mr. Hess has studied aeroplanes and done a great deal of building and experimenting. He stated tests of his latest aeroplane had been successful, and that the machine could be kept in the air as long as he wished.

The aeroplane weighs a ton and is powered with a 210 horsepower motor. There are two propellers, one in front and the other at the rear, revolving on vertical shafts.

Each propeller has four blades and is shaped like an umbrella. The forward shaft may be thrown into a horizontal position to drive the aeroplane forward once it is in the air.

The secrets of the machine are well guarded. It is the third helicopter made by Mr. Hess. The first was a model and later he experimented with a 100 horsepower motor-driven machine.

Queer Broadcast Reception

Alberta Folks Hear Musical Program Without Receiving Sets

Mysterious music that "came out of a clear sky" baffled four road workers near Dodds, Alta., about 40 miles southeast of Edmonton. They said it was a radio program from Edmonton but there were no receiving sets "for five miles around" where they were working.

Startled by the music, A. J. Thorley, R. Gjerde, H. Vergette and R. Flotree thought there might be an automobile in the vicinity but search revealed nothing.

They proceeded to a farm house more than a mile distant where they found Mrs. G. Sanstrom who claimed she had also heard the music but had feared to mention it, thinking people might wonder about her sanity.

As the workers were making further "investigations," the music ceased as suddenly as it had started, they reported. The music had continued as they walked toward the distant farm home.

The program from nowhere eclipsed the story of the Lindsay, Ont., farmer who heard melodies from his stove, and other reports of tunes coming from kitchen sinks.

Woman's Fear of Rheumatic Pains

One of the many troubles that afflict rheumatic sufferers is the difficulty of getting up and down stairs. Such was the case with this woman, before she started taking Kruschen, but now she finds it no trouble. Read what she says:

I had very painful rheumatism in my knees and back and also my head was getting very bad. I used to dread walking upstairs, now I am very thankful to say it is no trouble at all and I scarcely have any pains. I feel better in health than I have done for years."—(Mrs.) G.M.

France will add 1,500 planes to her defence units under plans approved by the cabinet and air ministry, it was announced at Paris. The additional planes will raise France's strength in the air to 4,000 of the most modern ships.

The personnel, the air ministry announced, will be raised to 50,000 by the immediate addition of 10,000 men and 1,000 officers chosen from the present non-commissioned officers of the air, army and navy corps as well as air corps reserve officers.

Canada's tourist business increased by more than 1,000,000 visitors this summer, compared with 1935, to reach an all-time record, D. Britishers Hope He Will Launch New British Liner

King Edward may lay the first keel plate of the $22,500,000 new British liner, as yet unnamed, which is to be built at Clydebank, Scotland, as a sister ship to the Atlantic blue ribbon holder Queen Mary.

Britishers hope Edward will consent to launch the vessel at Clydebank, 18 months or two years from now, and will name her King George V., the name popular vote has already given the new liner.

Officially the ship is to be known as No. 552 until her launching.

She will be of the same dimensions as the Queen Mary, but recent important improvements in marine engineering will be incorporated in the 200,000 horsepower engines.

"ROOM IN THE INN"

(From Christian Science Monitor)
The most wonderful Christmas story ever told was written by Luke nearly 2000 years ago. It is in the second chapter of his Gospel, where the disciple relates the coming to Bethlehem of Mary and Joseph and the birth of the infant Jesus, and the laying of the child in a manger "because there was no room for them in the inn."

"No room for them in the inn." Then, And now? Twenty centuries later? Are not the chambers of Christendom too often occupied so that there is no room for the Christ-child? Writing in the Ladies' Home Journal, December, 1907, Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, said:

"Christmas to me is the reminder of God's great gift, — His spiritual idea, man and the universe, — a gift which so transcends mortal, material, sensual giving that the merriment, mad ambition, rivalry, and ritual of our common Christmas seem a human mockery in mimicry of the real worship in commemoration of the Christ's coming."

Can we not in humility and gratitude so order our lives that merely material pursuits and worldly pleasures shall not crowd out from our days consecration to higher and holier purpose? Thus shall we be making room in the inn for the Christ, our individual human lives will approach more nearly the beauty of holiness which was the Master's, and every day will be a Christmas.

FARMING AID PLANS ARE TO BE CO-ORDINATED

Agricultural marketing on a nationwide scale will be brought into the limelight in its several phases at Ottawa shortly, when a Dominion-provincial conference of ministers of agriculture goes into session. Discussion is expected to centre around the formulation of a co-ordinated national programme for the marketing of agricultural produce, both in Canada and abroad.

A system of continual study of world and domestic markets will be considered, so that the Canadian farmer may be advised in advance as to what products or livestock he should stress. He could be advised too, to avoid trying to raise certain crops in certain unsuitable districts, which has been the cause of considerable distress in the past.

All provincial ministers of agriculture are expected to attend, with the Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Dominion minister of agriculture. It is possible that some provincial premiers may remain over from the national finance committee.

The agenda to be followed is:
Present status of the Natural Products Marketing Act.

Extent to which a national policy for the promotion of the marketing of agricultural products can and may be carried on by the Dominion department of agriculture without any additional legislation.

Extent to which it is advisable and possible for the Dominion and Provincial governments to co-operate, through legislation or otherwise, in promoting the marketing of agricultural products.

Heavy Rains Delay Roadwork

The progress on the Riverside road job is being considerably held up just now owing to the very wet weather, which is making working conditions in the heavy soil impossible. Synopsis of Land Act

PRE-EMPTIONS
VACANT, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age, and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation and improvement.

Full information concerning pre-emption is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C.; Bureau of Provincial Information, Victoria, or any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes within reasonable distance of road, school and marketing facilities and which is not timberland, i.e., carrying over 5,000 board feet per acre east of the Coast Range and 8,000 feet per acre west of that Range.

Applications for pre-emption are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division in which the land applied for is situated, on printed forms obtained from the Commissioner.

Pre-emption must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before a Crown Grant can be received.

Pre-emption carrying part time conditions of occupation are also granted.

PURCHASE OR LEASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland, for agricultural purposes. Minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land, $2.50 per acre. Further information is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

As a partial relief measure, reverted lands may be acquired by purchase in ten equal instalments, with the first payment suspended for two years, provided taxes are paid when due and improvements are made during the first two years of not less than 10% of the appraised value.

Mill, factory or industrial sites on timber land, not exceeding 40 acres, may be purchased or leased, the conditions including payment of stumpage.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesteads, conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtained after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

For grazing and industrial purposes areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under grazing regulations amended from time to time to meet varying conditions. Annual grazing permits are issued based on certain monthly rates per head of stock. Priority in grazing privileges is given to resident stock owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free or partially free permits available for settlers, campers and travellers, up to ten head.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

DON'T INCLUDE TOO MUCH IN ONE PICTURE

This picture, while striking, is really two pictures in one.

ONE of the faults often seen in the work of an amateur photographer, especially of a beginner, is the inclusion of too much in one picture. He tries to "hog the whole show," as it were, with results that are uninteresting or distracting.

For example, from the top of a mountain or other eminence, he is impressed by a vast panorama of country—several hundred square miles of it spreading to the horizon in a great semi-circle—and promptly tries to compress it into a few square inches of film. The result on the film is little more than a wavy or jagged line—the horizon line—separating a white space from a dark space. He failed to note how all the interesting detail was swallowed up in the vastness of the scene.

Such a panorama may be saved by beautiful cloud effects obtained by using a color filter and, of course, it can serve, and may well be treasured, as a "record" picture of a visit, but vastness unrelieved by nearly detail generally makes a poor picture. Better to let the panorama be a background for something worth looking at in the foreground. A foreground object—a single tree, a human being, a grazing cow, a nearby cottage on the mountain slope, often will make all the difference in a scene picture between something interesting to look at and little or nothing.

Again, in nearby scenes, there is frequently material for two or even more complete pictures that the picture taker has crowded into one, with the result that the eye wanders from one point to another, producing a sense of irritation rather than of pleasure. All right in a three-ring circus, if you like, but not for a good photograph. Selection, leaving out what is not really required, is a lesson to be learned. The viewpoint should be chosen carefully, remembering that much that is extraneous may be eliminated, or at least made unobtrusive, by moving the camera to the right or left, up or down, nearer or farther away, or by focusing from different planes, or by using different diaphragm openings in the lens.

But sometimes, you say, how can you help getting in several objects of competing interest when Nature or circumstance has them in the picture you want to take. It is true that this situation cannot always be easily avoided but, when you are confronted with it, you may find yourself lucky after all. Go ahead and shoot and then examine your print. Imagine a scene on a river. Your point of interest is a girl in a bathing suit about to dive from a row-boat in mid-stream. You have to snap the picture from the river bank fifty feet distant. You find when the print is finished that interest in the girl is rivaled by that in a small boy in the foreground at the right, fishing from the bank. Beyond, diagonally across the river on the left, is a dam and picturesque old mill in a setting of willows. You have three pictures in one. What do you do? You take your print and mark each one of these interesting pictures from the two others; mark them and have the corresponding sections on the negative separately enlarged.

Many a fine picture is made by enlarging a selected portion of a miscellaneous composition.

R. TOPPER TO TEACH AGRICULTURE IN DISTRICT

Mr. R. Topper, who has been principal of the Sumas-Abbotsford high school for the past six years, has resigned his position to accept one as supervisor of agriculture for the Matsqui, Sumas and Abbotsford school districts. Mr. E. W. Burton, who has been on the teaching staff of the high school for the past two years, has been promoted to the principalship. The nature of Mr. Topper's work, which at first is in the high schools, but will later include the elementary schools also, will be the teaching of agriculture. This, of necessity, will be almost entirely theory, but as much practical work as possible, such as hot beds, seed plots, etc., will be attempted.

LIVING COSTS IN B. C. RISE 7 PER CENT DURING 1936

Figures proving what many a housewife has suspected for months—that the cost of living is increasing in British Columbia—have been compiled by the department of labor in Victoria, in a quarterly survey.

The survey shows an average increase of 7.5 per cent. in the cost of foodstuffs in 50 B.C. centres since last year.

The figures are based on an index budget of 36 items. On July 31, 1935, these were shown to cost $31.23. On August 31, this year, the prices tallied $33.57, up $2.34, or 7.5 per cent.

Forty-five of the 50 centres showed increases which varied according to locality, some running as high as 15 per cent.

In Vancouver the increase was more than 10 per cent., in Victoria 7 per cent.

Federal statistics for the same period show an increase in their index from 105 to 111 for the province as a whole.

BLIZZARD CLOSES ROAD TO MOUNT BAKER LODGE

A raging blizzard on Saturday night forced the closing of the Mount Baker highway to Mount Baker lodge, reports state, while in Bellingham and vicinity, a strong south-east wind and rain storm endangered small craft moored along the Bellingham Bay waterfront.

Rock slides on Chuckanut drive resulted in establishment of one-way traffic at various points.

The wind at times gained an estimated velocity of thirty-five miles an hour.

Members of the Aldergrove Elks' Lodge are busy making preparations for the distribution of over 100 Christmas hampers to the needy of the district. The Brother Bills plan to have the hampers in the homes by December 23rd.
